FREE GUIDE

The Owner's AI Prompt Pack

9 copy-paste prompts for the chores you already do every week.

> Works in any AI chat: ChatGPT, Claude or Gemini. Free versions are fine.

HOW TO USE THIS

Copy. Fill the [brackets]. Paste.

1 Open any AI chat.

2 Copy a prompt from this pack.

3 Replace everything in [brackets] with your details.

4 Read the answer. Edit it so it sounds like you.

5 Never paste card numbers or passwords.

Inside:

Unpaid invoice reminders · Reply to a bad review · Reply to a good review · Missed-call text back · Job notes to quote line items · Weekly follow-up to old leads · Voice memo to client email · FAQ answer bank from past emails · Turn a job into a social post

PROMPT 01

Unpaid invoice reminders

When to use it: An invoice is past due and you want a nudge that sounds like you, not a collections agency.

COPY THIS PROMPT

Write a polite payment reminder for [client name]. Invoice [number] for [amount] was due on [date]. It is now [days] days late. My tone is [friendly / direct / formal]. Here are two messages I have written before so you can match my voice: [paste examples]. Keep it under 80 words, include how to pay: [payment link or method], and end with a thank you.

> Tip: Ask for three versions: day 3, day 14 and day 30. Save them and reuse.

PROMPT 02

Reply to a bad review

When to use it: A customer left a harsh review and you want to answer calmly, in public.

COPY THIS PROMPT

Here is a review of my business, [business name]: [paste review]. Write a calm, professional public reply under 90 words. Thank them, acknowledge the specific issue without arguing, say what we are doing about it, and invite them to contact [name] at [phone or email] to make it right. Do not admit legal fault and do not sound defensive.

> Tip: Wait an hour before posting. Read it out loud once.

PROMPT 03

Reply to a good review

When to use it: Someone said something nice and you want to thank them without sounding copy-pasted.

COPY THIS PROMPT

Write a short, warm reply to this review of [business name]: [paste review]. Mention one specific detail they wrote about, thank them by first name [name], and keep it under 50 words. Naturally mention [service] once so new customers reading it know what we do.

> Tip: Replying to every review, good and bad, shows people someone is paying attention.

PROMPT 04

Missed-call text back

When to use it: You missed a call during a job and want a text ready to send right away.

COPY THIS PROMPT

I run [business type] in [town]. Write 3 short text messages (under 300 characters each) I can send when I miss a call. They should say sorry I missed you, I am on a job, and offer a next step: [book link / call back time / reply with what you need]. Sign off as [your name] from [business name]. Friendly, not salesy.

> Tip: Save the best one as a text shortcut on your phone. Automating it is the next step.

PROMPT 05

Job notes to quote line items

When to use it: You have messy notes from a site visit and need a clean quote or invoice.

COPY THIS PROMPT

Turn these job notes into quote line items: [paste notes]. Use a table with columns: item, description, quantity, unit price, total. Use these rates: [your rates]. If something is missing a price, flag it with [PRICE NEEDED] instead of guessing. Add a subtotal at the end and a one-line scope summary for the client.

> Tip: Always check the math yourself before sending. AI can make arithmetic mistakes.

PROMPT 06

Weekly follow-up to old leads

When to use it: You have people who asked for a quote and went quiet.

COPY THIS PROMPT

Here is a list of leads who did not book: [name, what they asked about, date of last contact]. For each one, write a short, no-pressure follow-up message under 60 words. Reference what they asked about, offer one helpful next step, and make it easy to say no. My business is [business name] and I sign off as [your name].

> Tip: Pick one day a week, like Monday morning, and do it in one sitting.

PROMPT 07

Voice memo to client email

When to use it: You talked through an update while driving and need it to become a real email.

COPY THIS PROMPT

Here is a transcript of a voice memo I recorded: [paste transcript]. Turn it into a clear email to [client name] about [project]. Keep my main points, cut the rambling, use short paragraphs, and list any next steps or dates as bullet points. Tone: [friendly / professional]. Under 150 words.

> Tip: Most phones can transcribe a voice memo for you. Paste that text in.

PROMPT 08

FAQ answer bank from past emails

When to use it: You answer the same questions every week and want ready answers.

COPY THIS PROMPT

Here are customer emails I have received: [paste 10 to 20 emails, remove private details]. Find the questions that come up most often. For each one, write a clear answer in my voice under 80 words, using only facts from my emails or these details: [hours, service area, policies]. Mark anything you are unsure about with [CHECK].

> Tip: Remove names, addresses and card details before pasting anything into an AI chat.

PROMPT 09

Turn a job into a social post

When to use it: You finished a job you are proud of and want to share it.

COPY THIS PROMPT

I just finished this job: [what you did, for what kind of customer, the problem and the result]. Write a short social post under 100 words that explains the problem and how we fixed it, in plain language. No hashtag spam, at most 3. Do not use the customer's name. End with: [your call to action].

> Tip: Add a real before and after photo. It does more than any caption.

FROM WEBSAGE

Want this running on autopilot?

These prompts save time when you run them by hand. We build systems that run them for you, like texting back missed calls or sending invoice reminders on schedule.

We build that. websageinc.com